Chinese Tea Menu

First-Grade White Tea

Made from carefully selected tea leaves from ancient large-leaf tea trees in Yunnan, China, that are over 100 years old. Carefully crafted using new shoots consisting of one bud and two leaves. Rich in amino acids and tea polyphenols. (950 yen)

White Tea Dragon Pearls

Made from the first flush of tea leaves from old trees. Not only does it have a vivid flavor and a rich aroma, but it also retains the tea leaves' abundant nutrients and is rich in pectin, offering potential beauty benefits. (800 yen)

Fresh Pu-erh Tea

Carefully selected from Yunnan, China, this "Shaiqing Maocha(晒青毛茶)" has been crafted using traditional methods. It has a soft, smooth mouthfeel and a gentle sweetness. Its aroma lingers in the mouth. (800 yen)

Aged Pu-erh Tea

It has aromas of molasses and jujube. Well-fermented ripe Pu-erh tea is rich in beneficial tea bacteria, is gentle on the stomach, and is believed to aid in weight loss. Highly recommended for Chinese tea lovers. (800 yen)

Mu Mei Ren (Oolong Tea)

This is a traditional oolong tea made from Shaiqing Maocha raw tea leaves from Yunnan, China. It has a fruity aroma reminiscent of orchid honey. It also has a smooth mouthfeel with a hint of sweetness, and its lingering aftertaste is particularly notable. (800 yen)

Old Tree Sun-Dried Black Tea

Because it is air-dried naturally in the sun, the UV rays help preserve its unique tea aroma for a long time, resulting in a black tea with a richer flavor. This black tea is also appealing for its natural sweetness and aroma. (800 yen)

Wild Black Tea

This black tea is characterized by its strong sense of mountainous wilderness. When brewed, it has a clean, high-pitched, and pure aroma, with a rich, orchid-like fragrance that stands out. (800 yen)

Kyoto Wazuka "Yabukita" Black Tea

We have carefully hand-picked pesticide-free tea leaves from Wazuka, Kyoto-using the "one bud, two leaves" method-and hand-rolled and sun-dried them to create this Chinese black tea. It is a premium black tea with a fruity flavor and a natural sweetness. (800 yen)

Kyoto Wazuka "Okumidori" Black Tea

We have carefully hand-picked pesticide-free tea leaves from Wazuka, Kyoto-using the "one bud, two leaves" method-and hand-rolled and sun-dried them to create this Chinese black tea. It is a premium black tea with a fruity flavor and a natural sweetness. (800 yen)

※ The prices listed are for in-store consumption (including 10% tax). Please ask the shop owner for takeout prices.
※ We also offer a variety of other Chinese teas. Please ask the shop owner for more information.

Kotone's Commitment to Quality

The Chinese teas at "Kotone Sabo" are safely sourced through official import channels, with a focus on teas from China's "Jue Cha Dao." They are made from large-leaf tea leaves grown in Yunnan, China, from trees that are hundreds of years old. These tea leaves contain few alkaline substances and far more beneficial compounds than ordinary small-leaf varieties, making them a high-quality Chinese tea that is sweet and fragrant.